

About Us

We started purchasing, collecting, restoring and flying vintage warbird aircraft in 1990. We have facilities in both Campbellford and at the Peterborough Airport. Peterborough is our base for flying, as we do not have an airport in Campbellford as of this time. We have both flying and static aircraft ranging from WWI to the current F5A jets still used today by our airforce. We also have a large collection of flight simulators and military equipment. We continue to add to the collection.

Mission and Vision

Our mission is to teach and transfer the history, technology and the flying technology of the Canadian military and aviation. We have completed the purchase of property and the two runways are now in full operation. It is our desire to build a second hangar building to house and facilitate more vintage aircraft.

Recent Success in Our Charitable Work:

Established March 23, 2004 – still collecting, restoring and setting up facilities.

"We collect, restore and fly vintage warbird aircraft."
